

HUNS WANTED ISLANDS

Germany Wanted Caribbean Stronghold—U. S. Nipped Plan

Germany planned to get control of the Virgin Islands and with this strategic possession in the Caribbean it was the intention of the Huns to menace the Panama Canal and the whole Gulf region.

Senator William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, made this declaration upon his return to Washington, after a trip on a submarine chaser from Porto Rico to the Virgin Islands.

"The United States got possession of the Virgin Islands just in time—and wisely," he said. "The Germans had designs on them. If they had succeeded in obtaining possession, they might have succeeded in wreaking great havoc before we could have stopped them. At St. Thomas, a splendid harbor, the building of the Hamburg-American Company has concrete foundations eight feet thick. What was the object? To plant guns there and command the harbor, of course."
